Here are some of the tax credits and deductions from the IRS for businesses that accommodate individuals with disabilities:

- Disabled Access Credit: this non-refundable credit is available to small businesses (earned less than $1M and no more than 30 full-time employees) for expenditures they incur for providing access to individuals with disabilities.

- Barrier Removal Tax Deduction: businesses that remove architectural and transportation barriers for individuals with disabilities may claim a deduction of up to $15,000/year for qualified expenses. This can be used with the disabled tax credit if the expenses meet the requirements of both.

- Work Opportunity Tax Credit: employers who hire individuals with disabilities are eligible for this tax credit, which has a maximum range of $1,200 to $9,600 depending on the hired employee and length of their employment.
